Charles H. Harvey, of Bath, is in trouble in Boston, because they found out that he is not Wm. H. Fogg. He found Mr. Fogg's credit good in four different places and found himself in one very bad place.

Harley Richardson, living with Moses Frost, in Winthrop, was turning the stone to grind a scythe, when he fell forward and instantly expired. Probable cause heart disease. Mr. Richardson was about 60 years old.

Rev. James M. Palmer of Portland, has consented to take the general charge of collecting contributions for the proposed additional endowment of $100,000 for Bowdoin College. $6,000 of this sum have already been paid or pledged.

Monday afternoon, as a train of platform cars was coming up to Portland from Berlin wharf, one of the boys who were riding on the train, fell off and went under the car, the wheel passing over his foot crushing it fearfully and tearing the skin from his leg up to the knee.

The body of Mr. Smith, of St. Louis, who was drowned at Biddeford Pool, some weeks since, was recovered Monday, near the place where he met his death, by two small boys who were fishing there. The reward of $500 offered for the recovery of the body and now on deposit in one of the Biddeford banks, will be immediately paid over to them.

Mr. Chas. Fairbrother, stable-keeper in Skowhegan, has commenced legal proceedings against H. P. Chelius of Boston, for overdriving and spoiling a horse. Mr. Fairbrother alleges that Mr. Chelius started from Skowhegan at 9 A. M., agreeing to drive only to Abbott that day; but that he heard of him at Moosehead Lake at 7 P. M.—63 miles in ten hours; that the horse is nearly or quite spoiled.

A grand national temperance meeting under the auspices of the New England Reformed Men's Association, is to be held at Old Orchard Camp meeting ground, beginning September 8th, and lasting five days. John B. Gough and other eminent speakers are to be present, and Gov. Dingley will deliver the address of welcome. Arrangements for reduced fares have been made with railroads, and the largest gathering of the kind ever seen in the country is expected.

The house of John G. Jobse in Litchfield, was struck by lightning last Thursday forenoon, tearing out the whole front of the house, and breaking the glass, the fluid passing along the whole length of the sill. The house was not set on fire, but the family received severe shocks. The men in the blacksmith shop near by were knocked down, and the workmen in Plympton's workshop saw large balls of fire fly from their tools, and the smell of brimstone was strong.

The committee of Bath citizens and of the Maine Historical Society have held conferences and matters relating to the Popham celebration have been put in training. The Bath gentlemen have made the necessary contracts for transportation, and all who desire to visit Popham on Saturday, August 29th, may rest assured that full accommodations will be provided. The literary part of the entertainment will be of high order, and matters to be presented will be of deep interest to the student of Maine history.

Mischief in the Air.

We cannot analyze the aerial poisons that produce epidemic and endemic diseases, but the valuable discoveries which have been made in vegetable pharmacy enable us to counteract their malific influence. The most powerful known antidote to every species of malaria is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a pure botanical medicine in which the finest antiseptics tonics, alteratives and stimulants of the vegetable kingdom are skillfully and effectively combined. At seasons of the year when the atmosphere is surcharged with miasma, and whenever the specific virus of any infectious disease is supposed to be present in the air, this famous corrective should be taken regularly as a protective. All who choose to observe this precaution may bid defiance to intermittent and remittant fevers, and in fact to all disorders generated by foul exhalations or impure water. aug20

Republican Nominations.

FOR GOVERNOR:

NELSON DINGLEY, JR.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES TO CONGRESS.

First District—JOHN H. BURLEIGH.
Second District—WILLIAM P. FRYE.
Third District—JAMES G. BLAINE.
Fourth District—SAMUEL F. HERSEY.
Fifth District—EUGENE HALE.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican voters of the County of Penobscot are hereby notified to meet by delegates in Convention, at the City Hall, in Bangor, on THURSDAY the 20th day of August next, at 10 o'clock A. M., to nominate candidates for four Senators, Sheriff, Register of Probate, County Treasurer, and one County Commissioner, and to transact any other business that may come before the Convention.

BASIS—Each city, town and plantation, one delegate and for every fifty votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1873, one additional delegate, and for a fraction of twenty-five votes an additional to fifty votes, another delegate.

NEWELL BLAKE,
D. F. DAVIS,
G. E. THOMPSON,
LEWIS F. SIMPSON,
Republican County Committee.

Bangor, July 21, 1874.

In accordance with the vote of the last County Convention, the localities from which the candidates for Senators are to be taken, are designated as follows:

NORTHERN DISTRICT—POPULATION, 18,579.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT—POPULATION, 18,742.

BANGOR DISTRICT—POPULATION, 19,000.
Bangor and Veazie.

UPPER RIVER DISTRICT—POPULATION, 18,270.
The balance of the County.

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican delegates of Penobscot county will assemble at City Hall this forenoon, to select candidates as enumerated in the call of the Committee published above, and quite a large attendance is anticipated. The larger number of the nominations will be made without contest, the candidates holding over by usage and in recognition of faithful service, the principal competition being expected in the nomination of a candidate for the office of sheriff. The friends of the gentlemen named in connection with this office have manifested quite a lively interest in the canvass, and the early arrival of delegates betokens a full gathering. We shall be glad to see a large representation of the sturdy Republicans of our county assembled in council together, as although there is no particular stir in the political arena just now, it is desirable that organization should be thoroughly pushed forward, in order that our county may keep its standard flying at full height.

Besides the election of our county candidates, we desire a full vote for the Republican candidate for Governor, and it is also important that we should give our worthy Representative to Congress the largest possible majority. In this work, the prominent Republicans who will meet in County Convention, are expected to bear an important part, and the opportunity for interchange of views and preparing for the most successful exertions, can be made most useful.

We have no doubt that the amicable rivalry for the preference of the Convention will be so conducted as to strengthen the harmony of the party, and that whoever is unsuccessful will vie with the more fortunate in laboring for the success of the whole ticket at the polls. The time of our annual election is rapidly drawing nigh, and we hope that the reunion to-day will inspire a renewed zeal in putting forth every effort to send out such a record from the polls as our brethren elsewhere always expect from Penobscot.

The Machias Union, in announcing the Democratic Convention for the Fifth District, says that "however desirable a change may be we see no prospect whatever of effecting one, and Mr. Hale will no doubt be returned." It also remarks that "so long as we are to have a Republican for Representative in Congress we prefer the best man, and all things considered Mr. Hale is the best man for the District the Republicans can elect." It further expresses the opinion that Hancock will be unanimous for Mr. Hamlin.

The moral impression produced by Mr. Beecher's statement has caused its literary merits to be temporarily overlooked. A more skilful document, or one more judiciously calculated to produce its effect, cannot be found. Its ability and force are extraordinary. In all his brilliant career, Mr. Beecher has never given greater proof that he possesses intellectual resources beyond the generality of men.—[New York Sun.

The Boston Globe, made a queer slip for so careful a paper, on Wednesday, in locating Senator Hamlin's residence in Kennebec County. Recent political events have demonstrated that he has a great many and very warm friends in Old Kennebec, but the Senator has not removed his home from Bangor, and the people of Penobscot have no notion of giving up their claim to that distinguished and honored fellow citizen.

Mr. Bradbury, of Portland, has published a long letter accepting the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Fifth District. He intimates that he shall spend no money in the canvass; and, while endorsing the platform of his Convention, arraigns the Democracy and Republicans of Congress alike for sins of omission and commission, and hints strongly at a new party movement. Mr. B. has for some time been restless in the traces, and he takes the first semi-official occasion to indicate his lack of faith in the old Democratic concern.

A Washington despatch says: "In reference to the reports of the contemplated cession of Porto Rico to Germany, it may be said with certainty that Caleb Cushing at Madrid and Mr. Davis at Berlin, have the subject on their memoranda of instructions, and will not fail at the proper time to report to the Governments of Spain and Germany the position of the Administration in the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine.

Since Beecher has spoken, there is one thunder-struck man in Brooklyn, we suspect, who, by this time, is convinced that the game of "thunder-bolts" is one at which he himself is not the only person capable of taking a hand! It is one thing to be moon-struck by the ghost of Demosthenes; but quite another to be smitten in the face at last by the righteous verdict of outraged public opinion.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

On Wednesday the Pennsylvania Republican State Convention meets at Harrisburg, and the Tennessee Democratic State Convention meets at Nashville. On Thursday the Alabama Republican State Convention meets at Montgomery. It is thought that the Tennessee Democrats will have rather a stormy time of it, as nearly every set of delegates thus far chosen has been given instructions to vote for some special candidate, and the politicians are entirely unable to construct any satisfactory slate.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Hon. Wm. W. Phelps, of the Fifth New Jersey District, was renominated by acclamation on Wednesday.

The tone of the Virginia Democracy may be inferred from the fact that its organs have resumed the spelling of "negro" with two gs.

The election of J. T. Coleman Cole, as Governor of the Choctaw nation, and Frank Overton, as Governor of the Chickasaw nation, is regarded as a triumph of progressive principles among those Indians.

Ohio has a large crop of possible Presidents. The Cincinnati Commercial engages to name 1000 men in the city and 100,000 in the State who are capable of filling the Presidential office decently. Ohio is very fortunate, but she is welcome to keep this vast horde of Presidents to herself.

Although it is quite sure that Hon. Sanford E. Church will not be the Democratic Governor of New York, the Troy Whig yearns to have him put in nomination, because he would emerge from the campaign "with more damage to his character than any man who ever before ran for the same office."

The Buffalo Express (Rep.) does not think that John Cochrane and his committee have much of a following, and maintains that "there is no radical difference of opinion on public questions to bar the way of a return of all Liberals to the Republican party, and no artificial barriers should be erected by personal grudges and prejudices." It wishes old issues to be buried, and all who still cherish the Republican faith to be welcome to join in supporting the old cause.

There is considerable talk in the War Department about the publication by General Custar of his account of the Black Hills Expedition, as it is a violation of regulations and military etiquette for such reports to be furnished to any one except superior officers and the War Department.

More loose statements! Dr. Dio Lewis authoritatively announces to the world, and all the newspapers copy the announcement, that his temperance lectures have reduced fashionable wine-drinking in Boston 60 per cent. How was the Doctor able to arrive at the figures so precisely? Is he sure that it may not be correcter to say 55 per cent. or 62½ per cent.? Or if put upon a pretty severe cross examination under oath would the Doctor be able to swear that his lectures had reduced "fashionable drinking" at all? Assertions are not facts any more than fleas are lobsters.—[N. Y. Tribune.

NEWS BREVITIES.

Charles Moran, who murdered his brother's wife at Tweed, Ontario, has confessed the deed.

Another cloud burst at Austin, Nevada, on Tuesday, and flooded the town, but no lives were lost.

Two men and a woman were arrested in Odell, Ill., Tuesday, having with them, as is supposed, the missing Ross child.

The second national bank of Leavenworth, Kansas, with a capital of $100,000, is going into voluntary liquidation.

The selectmen of Westford, Mass., offer a reward of $1500 for the detection of the parties who fired buildings there last spring.

A female robber in Lowell, Mass., who was acting as the nurse of a poor widow having five children dependent upon her for support, stole all the money the invalid had and left, but was arrested Tuesday.

There is a feeling that a war of races will be inaugurated in South Carolina, and in that event the whites of Georgia, living on the Savannah river, will assist the whites. Arms and ammunition are being got in readiness already.

The new play of "Passion's Perils," which was to have put on at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Tuesday night, was withdrawn on a hint from the authorities, it being considered immoral. It was founded on the Beecher-Tilton scandal.

A delegation of the Royal Black Knights Encampment, of Canada, who came to New York last week under a dispensation of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, to introduce the order in the United States, left suddenly on Monday night, in consequence of the opposition of the Supreme Grand Master of the United States to the introduction of the order in this country.

A Panama letter says that Commandante Gonzales, of the Magee outrage notoriety, and his accomplice Rubles, have been tried by court-martial and sentenced, the former to five years' penal servitude, and the latter to two years'. The sentence awaits the sanction of the Government of Guatemala.

At a meeting of the managers of the New York Produce Exchange, Tuesday, a communication from the representatives of the Erie, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad Companies was received, declining to accede to the terms of the Produce Exchange, to wit,—the abolition of three-fourths per cent. per bushel for handling grain. A resolution was adopted by the board, adhering to the original proposition.

MORE TESTIMONY. The substance of John W. Harman's testimony before the Plymouth Church Investigating Committee is published. He is one of the confidential friends to whom Mr. Tilton related his domestic troubles. According to this witness Mr. Tilton accused Mr. Beecher of having made improper proposals to Mrs. Tilton, but made no reference to the charge of adultery. The document which Mr. Tilton has referred to as the "True Story" was read to Mr. Harman. In this, also, improper solicitation and not adultery was the main charge. Mr. Tilton also accused Mr. Beecher of having criminal relations with several women referred to in his letter to Mr. Bowen. The report of the Investigating Committee will not be completed next week. A letter from Mr. Frank Russell, Jr., of Kalamazoo, Mich., says he conversed with Mrs Cady Stanton on the 5th of May on the Beecher-Tilton matter, and she then gave no hint of any suspicion against Beecher, but affirmed with great earnestness her full belief that Mrs. Tilton was a pure and beautiful character, crushed by grief at the reckless unfaithfulness of her husband. She also coincided with him that the slanders against Beecher were without foundation.

The sub-committee of the Investigating Committee of Plymouth Church, consisting of Messrs. Sage, Winslow and Cleveland, have decided to commit the preparation of the draft of the report to Winslow, to be submitted to the other two members for revision. These in turn will submit it to the original Committee of six, who will make any alterations that may be necessary, and then hand it over to the Examining Committee of Plymouth Church, who will report at the next Friday night's meeting of the Church.

Referring to the disgusting parade of the confidential love-letters of Tilton and his wife which were furnished by him to a Chicago paper and have since filled several pages of the Herald, the Boston Advertiser says:

This publication of the correspondence between husband and wife, extending over many years, without the consent of the wife,—and that, too, after having blackened her good name as far as it was in human power to injure the fame of an honest woman,—there is in this an element of unspeakable baseness, not the less to be condemned because no human law follows it with adequate penalties. In all the annals of domestic scandal dragged before the public in this generation there has been nothing so odious as this; and it is a natural if not a logical outcome of the theory that in cases like this the public has a right to know everything. In this respect the larger newspapers have been greatly at fault in affording such easy opportunity for those who shrink from no breach of confidence that will enable them to gratify a greed for money or a passion for revenge.

The Winthrop Hot Air Furnace.

Simple and Durable in its Construction; As Easily Managed as a Parlor Stove; Large Radiation. Entire Freedom from Coal and Dust; Does not heat the Cellar.

Manufactured by LIGHTON FURNACE CO.

In the construction of the Winthrop Hot Air Furnace it has been made a study to avoid the difficulties and annoyances too often found in Furnaces. Pure warm air, free from gas and dust, is the great desideratum sought. Without enlarging upon the important matter of warming and ventilating houses, about which so much has been written of late, we desire to call your attention to the New Wrought-Iron Winthrop Heater, as possessing the requisites for a healthful and economical apparatus.

The base and fire pot of the Winthrop, is made of heavy cast iron; the fire pot lined with brick, so that the current of cold air as it comes in from the base does not come in contact with red hot plates, destroying its vitality, but is delivered into the hot air chamber pure and healthful.

The Radiator is made of the best Wrought Iron, as thoroughly riveted as a steam boiler, making the escape of gas and dust an impossibility; thus securing what cannot be guaranteed by any Cast Iron Furnace, with its many flues and joints, a healthful atmosphere.

The reversible flue secures the even distribution of heat over the whole furnace, leaving no part useless, thus making it the most powerful heater in the market. Another distinguishing feature of the Winthrop is the ease with which the flues can be cleaned out. This has been a serious difficulty with most furnaces, but has been entirely overcome in the Winthrop. The accumulation of soot and ashes in the flues can be thoroughly removed in a few minutes. The Winthrop has been thoroughly tested, and we invite all in want of a superior heating apparatus to an examination of its merits.

THE BROOKLYN SCANDAL.

PROOF THAT BEECHER PAID MONEY TO MOULTON.

New York, Aug. 19. Frank Moulton arrived in the city this morning. It is not known when he will give a further statement to the public, if at all. The Investigating Committee find that the books of Woodruff & Robinson confirm the statement of Beecher as to his payment of money to Moulton. It appears that the money was deposited to Moulton's credit, and probably subsequently paid over to Tilton, or kept as payment of money that Moulton had already advanced to Tilton.

TILTON AND THE "MUTUAL FRIEND" REFUSE TO BE INTERVIEWED.

Francis D. Moulton kept his house the entire day, and would hold no intercourse with any person. The house was besieged with newspaper representatives. It is believed that he will hasten to make public a refutation of the charges of blackmailing. Tilton is busily engaged in his new statement, and all attempts to interview him proved futile.

MEETING OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE.

The sub committee of the Investigating Committee hold a meeting to-night, when District-Attorney Winslow will read a draft of the report.

MOULTON SPEAKS—HIS FULL STATEMENT TO BE PUBLISHED.

Frank Moulton told a reporter to day that he had left unfinished some important mercantile business in New England and had come home on purpose to take from its hiding place and lay before the public the original statement he prepared for the Committee. "All the world now knows" says Moulton, "that my honor has been impugned, and by a man who impugns his own in so doing, and I shall publish my statement in full exactly as it was written at first. It is already in a printer's hands, and the printer has promised everything should be ready in time for the statement to appear in the morning and evening journals of Saturday night."

TILTON AND MOULTON IN CONFERENCE.

It is stated that Tilton spent over ten hours on his new statement yesterday, and there is authority for the assertion that the evidence it will contain will be very important. At nine o'clock this morning Moulton sent for Tilton, and their interview lasted several hours. Tilton's statement, it is expected, will be completed to morrow.

MOULTON CLAIMS POSSESSION OF IMPORTANT LETTERS.

Moulton said to another reporter to-day "I have not a single letter or document in my possession belonging to Mr Beecher that does not have reference to this case."

BEECHER

THE THREATENED SUIT AGAINST BEECHER.

Tilton's lawyers, Morris and Pearsall, wrote Mr Beecher Monday announcing that they are retained to bring a suit against him and asking that he indicate his counsel so that they could serve the papers on him. Messrs Shearman and Sterling replied that they were authorized to appear for Mr. Beecher and in his name requested that the papers be served at once.

THE SUB COMMITTEE—PLYMOUTH'S FAITH IN BEECHER UNSHAKEN.

The sub committee held no session this evening. Mr Winslow will return to-morrow and submit his work for revision. Assistant Pastor Halliday has during the past few days visited the most of Beecher's congregation and none signified their intention of withdrawing from the church, but all assured Mr. Halliday that they would stand by their church and its pastor, whom they believe entirely innocent of the charges preferred against him.

Seventh Regiment Reunion. The first reunion of the veterans of the old Seventh Maine Regiment will take place at Portland Sept. 17th. Members will assemble at Army and Navy Hall at 9 A. M. and from there go to Chebeague Island, where they will breakfast. A business meeting will then be held, and the remainder of the day will be spent in listening to addresses by invited guests and members of the regiment, the discussion of a clam-bake, etc.

Fire on Pearl Street. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the roof of Mr. John Hanley's house on Pearl street was discovered to be on fire and a general alarm was given. One steamer and the hand engine went up to a reservoir on Essex street, to play, but could not reach the house with their hose, and the Little Giant was taken direct to the spot and extinguished the flames and saved the building. The damage will amount to about $150; not insured.

B. & B. Railroad Bridge. The false bridge for the first span of the Bucksport & Bangor railroad bridge across the Penobscot between this city and Brewer, is in position, and the permanent span will probably be completed in a week, when the workmen will immediately proceed to erect the temporary bridge for the second span. The bridge is to be of the Howe truss pattern, 24 feet high and 21 feet from outside to outside. The castings and rods which are being manufactured at the Hinckley & Egery works, are nearly ready, so that no delay will be occasioned.

State Muster Field. We are informed that Gov. Dingley, as Commander-in Chief, has, in accordance with the usual custom, extended the authority of Gen'l Chamberlain to a distance of one-half mile around the ground selected for the annual muster, and that the statutes provide that no person can engage in trade or any occupation within these limits without express authority, unless such persons had, prior to the establishment of the ground, engaged in such trade or occupation. This wise provision of the law will effectually prevent any illegal or harmful practices.

The Trot at Pittsfield, yesterday—the second day of the August meeting—attracted a large crowd, as on the previous day. The race for horses that never beat 2 50 was contested by three horses and won in three straight heats by Frank Hazelton's gray mare Mabel Gray, Charles Dustin's bay gelding Modoc coming in second and A. W Brackett's bay mare Blanche third, in each heat. The time was 2 44, 2 43 and 2 48¼. The sweepstakes was not filled, and the race was consequently not trotted. Considerable dissatisfaction was shown by the crowd at this, and a row was imminent at one time, but fortunately better counsels prevailed.

A Monster Clam Bake. The clambake at Portland, for the Odd Fellows' celebration on the 25th inst, will be the largest ever got up in New England. Provisions will be made for 3000 guests. The bake will be 150 feet by 10 in size. It will contain 200 bushels of clams, 400 dozen of eggs, 1500 lobsters, 3500 ears of corn, 29 bushels of potatoes. In addition to the bake there will be 108 large two gallon pots of beans, 200 loaves of brown bread and 7 barrels round pilot bread. There will be barrels of pickles and other condiments with 400 gallons of coffee. The bake will be served on tables, requiring 150 waiters. It will take ten cords of wood to make the bake.

Fatal Accident. About 8 o'clock Monday evening Mr. John E. Douglass of Dover took his rifle and left his house, saying he was going out to shoot some owls which had been troubling his poultry. The report of his rifle was heard soon after, and some of the family going to the stable found him lying dead on the floor, the rifle-ball having entered his face just under the nose and come out of the top of his head, blowing off a large piece of the skull. Some thinking there were indications of suicide, Coroner Thompson was called, who impaneled a jury and held an inquest, the result of which was a verdict that the deceased came to his death by the accidental discharge of a rifle in his own hands. Mr Douglass was about thirty five years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

Theatre. Nannary & McDowall's Theatre Company, which opens a brief season in Norombega Hall this evening, with "Richard III," has just closed a successful season at the Academy of Music at St. John, and the Telegraph of that city pays them the following high compliment:—

In parting with our dramatic friends, we cannot help complimenting them on the success of the season now closing, and thanking them for the large fund of amusement, entertainment and instruction which they have placed at the service of our citizens. The programme was wonderfully well chosen, the acting uniformly good, and the appointments and arrangements everything that could be expected in a city of the extent of St. John. We commend them to the people of Bangor as painstaking and clever artists, and we have confidence in believing that their visit to that city will be mutually satisfactory.

The members of the company, at the head of whom is Mr. Neil Warner, are named in our advertising columns. Tickets with reserved seats are for sale at Bughee & Co's.

Gen. Isaac Dyer, Inspector-General on the Governor's staff, was in town yesterday to inspect the uniforms just completed by Wheelwright, Clark & Co. for the Hersey Light Infantry, Belfast City Guards and Crosby Guards.

Gen J Marshall Brown and family, of Portland, were in town yesterday, on their way to Fort Point and Mount Desert.

Rev. J W. H Cromwell, pastor of the M. E. church at Oldtown, is seriously ill, and fears are entertained that he will be unable to preach again this season. Mr. Cromwell is very popular with his charge, and has hosts of friends in other sections who will deeply regret his failing health.

The Odd Fellows' Celebration. The programme of arrangements for the grand Odd Fellows' celebration, to occur in Portland next Tuesday, has been completed and shows that the procession will be the largest that ever paraded in that city. The line will include fourteen Encampments, thirty-three Lodges and seventeen bands. Major Geo. A. Bolton and E. A. Buck, Esq., of this city, have been appointed Chiefs of Divisions by Chief Marshal Beal—the former of the fourth and the latter of the fifth. Major Bolton's division will contain six bands, headed by the Bangor Cornet Band, following which will be Katahdin Encampment and Oriental and Penobscot Lodges of this city, Tarratine Lodge of Oldtown and Kineo Lodge of Dover. Eleven other Lodges will follow in this division. Mr. Buck's division will be headed by the Germania Band of Boston, and will consist of Maine Lodge of Portland, the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment, and invited guests.

Masonic. Most Worshipful David Cargill, Grand Master, assisted by officers of the Grand Lodge of Maine, F. and A. M., constituted Lynde Lodge, No. 174, at Hermon, yesterday afternoon, in ample form and with the usual interesting ceremonies. After constituting and consecrating the Lodge, the officers-elect for the current Masonic year were duly installed into their respective places, as follows:—Jonathan Hunt, W. M., John N Leathers, S. W.; Stephen S. Hewes, J. W.; Henry Patten, Treas.; J. S. Eaton, Secy.; Frank Jewell, S. D.; Sanford Smith, J. D.; Eben S. Fletcher, S. S.; Emery Morrill, J. S.; John C. Pickard, Tyler. After these services appropriate and interesting remarks were made by Grand Master Cargill, brothers J D. Warren, J. S. Ricker and J Fenno, from Bangor, and other visiting brethren from Carmel and elsewhere. The Lodge was then called "from labor to refreshment," and undivided attention was paid for an hour or more to a bountiful dinner which had been provided for the occasion by the wives and daughters of the Fraternity, (who were present in large numbers,) in a neat and commodious banquet room connected with the rooms of the Lodge.

Lynde Lodge starts into life with every prospect of usefulness. Their hall is over the Town Hall, which has recently been enlarged and finely adapted to the convenience of the town and the Fraternity, much to the mutual advantage of both parties. The exercises of the day were very much enjoyed by the large number present, all of whom were very favorably impressed by the dignified and able manner in which Grand Master Cargill performed the duties of his important office.

Plaisteds' New Moccasin Leather Tannery. The new moccasin leather tannery of Messrs. W. & H. F. Plaisted, on the Kenduskeag, about two miles above the city proper, is completed, and the work of tanning has been in progress about a month—the first lot of finished leather having been turned out last Saturday. The building is [illegible] feet on the ground and three stories high, very substantially constructed and well finished. On the lower floor are situated the vats, 20 in number, the great wheel for softening the hides, and a steam engine of 20 horse power. The second floor is used for a finishing room and dry room, and the third floor for a dry room. Six men are employed with Mr. Lord as foreman, who will turn out about 200 sides of leather per week, but an increase of force is contemplated, which will bring the production to 300 sides weekly. Everybody in this section is familiar with moccasin leather, which is manufactured into "pacs" or "plow-shoes" by several firms in this city. Its process of manufacture is somewhat peculiar, and there are "trade secrets" which the workmen are not allowed to reveal. The hides used are salted and come from the West and from Brighton. They are soaked in water one day and then rolled and tumbled about in a big hollow cylinder driven by steam, to soften them. Then they are put in lime water and scraped to remove the hair, and next into the tanning vats in a solution of salt, alum and other ingredients the nature of which is not made public. When they come out they are white as snow, but the operation of "stuffing" them with oil and tallow renders them of a yellowish cast, makes them perfectly waterproof and as pliable as rubber. The operation requires from four to six weeks. The shavings and trimmings from the hides are sent to Hallowell and Boston to be made into glue.

The location of the tannery is excellent, water is furnished from a never-failing spring and the Kenduskeag, and a large level plat of ground gives ample space for drying the hides in the intervals of their tanning.

The Match Race between the trotting horse Anodyne (formerly Honest Bill) owned by Mr. Stephen Jennings of this city, and the pacing horse Young Hero, owned by Mr. Joseph Potter of Calais, which took place on the Bangor Trotting Park yesterday afternoon, was witnessed by about a thousand persons. The horses were called up at 3.30 o'clock by the judges, Messrs. Barrows, Gennard Chase, and Young Hero drew the pole. The pacer was driven by Mr. S. B. Hill of Calais, and Mr Charles Record of this city held the reins over the trotter. At the third trial the word was given, and a very even send-off obtained. Anodyne broke at the turn, and was five lengths behind at the quarter pole, but settled to his work and collared Hero at the half-mile pole. He made another break before reaching the end of the third quarter, however, and the pacer got a big lead again, which he kept in, going under the wire in 2 37¼, ten lengths ahead of Anodyne. Mr. Record being ill, was unable to drive the second heat, and Mr. J. F. Haines took the trotter in charge. Anodyne got the lead at the first turn, and kept it through the heat, coming in in 2:43, with Hero's nose at his wheel. The third heat was a repetition of the second, except that the time was 3¼ seconds slower. Complaint was made to the judges that the pacer was pulled, and at their request a change of drivers was effected, Mr. Thomas McAloon taking Mr. Hill's place behind Hero. The fourth heat was a hot one to the half mile pole, which was reached in 1:17¼, but a little past it the pacer broke badly, giving Anodyne a lead which he retained, and jogged in in 2:44, Hero following at a gallop. The judges, after a long consultation, gave the race to Anodyne, but declared all pools and bets off. Following is a

Fort Point. Mr. Editor:—A goodly company are enjoying the out and in-door comforts of the Wassaumkeag Hotel. The refreshing air and charming scenery, together with the excellent appointments of the hotel, have won an unanimous expression of satisfaction from sojourners from abroad, some of whom after a large experience at a great number of the most popular watering-places in the country, in their summing up of all that enters into the requisites of such a place, give this the preference. Many from abroad have found their intended brief visits protracted into weeks and still continue. Such testimony to the merits of this locality from those so well qualified to judge is very gratifying.

There is a very cheerful and social homefeeling among the refined and cultured circle gathered there which at once transforms strangers into friends. Children are largely represented and mingle their happy, ringing voices among the pleasant sounds. When the evening tapers are lighted it is a pleasant scene which the ample corridors present in the free and social promenades of old and young, and almost nightly the matting is rolled up for a hop to the music of the grand piano, and the "good night" comes with a song. The Wassaumkeag under its admirable management, is making fast friends and a good start on a successful and prosperous career. P.

Temperance Meeting in Oldtown. Mr. Editor—Tuesday evening the Women's Crusade conducted a public temperance meeting at the Town Hall in Oldtown. There was a large attendance. Mrs. S. W. Hoskins presided, and the meeting was opened by reading of scriptures and singing, when Mrs. Hoskins made a few remarks calling upon the people to take a pronounced position, as all half-and-half business was cowardly. Temperance people must take a stand on the right side, or be counted with the opposition, and those who intended to reform could do so only by placing themselves in direct antagonism with their enemy. Mr. Cousens was there to institute a Good Templars' lodge and she advised all interested in temperance to avail themselves of this opportunity to identify themselves with the cause. Rev. O. M. Cousens was introduced and gave an interesting and instructive lecture on the effects of alcohol on the human stomach. Then followed singing of "The Battle Hymn." A Good Templars' Lodge was then publicly instituted by Mr. Cousens, with which a large number united. The meeting was a very earnest one, much interest was manifested, and the immediate results were most satisfactory and encouraging.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

AUGUST (CRIMINAL) TERM.

Hon John A. Peters, Justice Presiding.
Ezra C. Brett, Esq., Clerk.
Jasper Hutchings, Esq., County Att'y.

Wednesday, Aug. 19th. In the case of State vs. Edward Tebbets tried yesterday on a search and seizure process, the jury this morning reported that they were unable to agree. J. F. Godfrey.

State vs. Daniel Donelly, appellant; tried on a similar process on the 23d of May last, issued on complaint of the City Marshal. The officer made return that he searched the premises and "found and was prevented from seizing a small quantity of intoxicating liquors by its being spilled," and arrested the respondent. After hearing the testimony in the case, (which was to the effect that when the officers entered the premises the wife of the respondent seized a bottle, ran up stairs and threw it against a brick wall out of the window and broke it, the officers picked up the pieces and some remaining drops enabled them to swear that it contained intoxicating liquor when broken) the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Thereupon Judge Clark, counsel for the respondent, filed a motion in arrest of judgment, because the passage was not settled by a [illegible], and because the officers' return does not show that the liquors named in the return were the same described in the complaint, nor did it name the quantity of liquor as required by statute, nor does it state that the liquors were found on the premises of respondent. W. S Clark.

State vs. John D. Downs, appellant; a search and seizure process appealed from Police Court. Several bottles were seized, containing small quantities of liquor, and a stone pitcher with ale in it. Verdict guilty. The Court then sentenced defendant to pay a fine of fifty dollars and costs.

Downs was also sentenced to pay $100 fine and costs of prosecution upon an indictment found this term against him for keeping a liquor shop nuisance, to which he had plead guilty. Vose.

State vs. James Sweeney, appellant; a boy arrested for an assault on a playmate—Chase—and stabbing him with a knife. The boys were at play and Sweeney having an open knife in his hand caught hold of Chase and stuck the knife into his back—a broken blade about half an inch long. Sweeney testified that they were at play and that the cutting of his playmate was purely an accident. Verdict, not guilty. J. F. Godfrey.

ELBRIDGE W REED SENTENCED.

At 2 30 P. M., Elbridge W. Reed, the Medway murderer, was brought into Court, and Attorney General Plaisted moved that the sentence of the law be pronounced upon the prisoner at the bar.

Mr. McCrillis thereupon asked of the Court whether a sufficient number of the justices of the Court had concurred in the opinion overruling the exceptions and motion for a new trial, to which the Court replied in the affirmative.

After a short consultation with the prisoner, Mr. McCrillis informed the Court that he had no further objection to interpose to the passing of the sentence.

The Clerk then inquired of the prisoner if he had anything to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced upon him. He thereupon arose and said. "I am innocent of the murder of John Ray, and I have not had a fair trial."

His Honor Judge Peters then arose and addressed the prisoner as follows:—

Prisoner,—The Court having settled finally the legal questions raised at your trial, and overruled the exceptions taken in your behalf, it falls to my lot to perform the act which will terminate your case as far as the judicial tribunals are concerned. Your several trials under the indictment by which you stand charged have been both to you and the State a remarkable experience. At your first trial you were convicted of murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is death. For the admission of certain illegal evidence in that case the verdict was set aside. It is perhaps doubtful if the inadmissible evidence tended injuriously to your rights in any degree but the law in its humanity and especial carefulness where human life is concerned, granted a new trial. At the next trial the jury disagreed, which undoubtedly gave you some encouragement that you might finally be discharged from the awful charge against you.

But at a third trial you have been found guilty of murder in the second degree, the punishment for which is an imprisonment for life to hard labor. You still persist in response to the inquiry of the Clerk, just made upon you for what you have to say against sentence, that you are not guilty, and you see fit to say that you were not fairly tried. But you have had at the hands of the State all means possible for your defense, and the Court has decided that the law has been correctly and impartially given in your case. You have been defended with very brilliant ability from the beginning to the end. Your defense has been conducted with a remarkable energy and effort, so much so that it would seem impossible that your counsel has not hitherto had at least some doubt of your guilt. I should not be surprised if some of your immediate friends believe that you are not guilty. In this connection I think it not improper to declare to you in this presence that no member of the Court who has had occasion to examine the testimony of your trials but is well satisfied that you are justly convicted by the verdict which has been rendered against you. You yourself know, as no living person can, whether you committed the dreadful deed or not. I believe that no chance for a liberation from punishment can ever be possible to you, and that you should come yourself to that conclusion and accept the fact with all its consequences fully. The retribution for your crime, if not swift, follows inevitably and surely. I trust it will be a valuable warning to society that in this State at at least the most secreted unlawful killing of a human being, cannot be kept from the detection of the law or escape its punishment. Nothing more remains for me but to pronounce your sentence.

Elbridge W. Reed: The Court having considered the crime whereof you stand convicted, it is ordered that you be punished therefor by confinement to hard labor for and during the period of your natural life, and that this sentence be executed upon you within the precincts of the State Prison, situate at Thomaston, in the county of Knox, and that you stand committed until removed in execution of this sentence.

The prisoner maintained the same calm impassive behavior which characterized him during his three trials, and received his sentence unmoved. He was returned to jail, and will be taken to Thomaston at once.

BANGOR POLICE COURT.

BEFORE JUDGE GOODENOW.

Wednesday, August 19th. Sheehan, the young man who so brutally pounded his father's face on Tuesday, was arraigned and fined $2 and costs.

"How the Democrats do it in New Hampshire. The wholesale turning out of Republicans and appointment of Democrats still goes on in New Hampshire, even the courts being tampered with in search of the spoils of office. At a meeting of the Governor and Council the nominations of judges made at the last meeting were confirmed. Clinton W. Stanley of Manchester was nominated as Associate Justice of the Circuit Court in place of J. S. H. Frink of Greenland, who declined. The Court is now as follows: Chief Justice of the Superior Court, Hon. E. L. Cushing of Charlestown; Associate Justices, Wm. S. Ladd of Lancaster and Isaac H. Smith of Manchester, Chief Justice of the Circuit Court, Hon. W. L. Foster of Concord; Associate Justices, E. D. Rand of Lisbon and Clinton W. Stanley of Manchester. At the afternoon meeting, Daniel W. Edgerly was removed from the office of Police Justice of Farmington, and Frank Emerson was nominated in his place. John Foster was appointed Justice of the Police Court of Littleton. Wm. Chase of Concord was appointed Trustee of the Public Library to succeed Judge Foster, whose term of office expires Sept. 11. The session adjourned shortly after three o'clock to meet at the call of the Governor.

Mysterious Case. The mysterious assault upon the girl Mary Tyman, in Boston, a few weeks ago, which was for some days regarded as necessarily fatal, is again brought to notice by the arrest of a man on a charge of committing the attempt to murder. After careful examination of the wounds in the girl's head, the surgeons decided that they could have been caused only by a turner's gouge. The detectives, acting upon that clue, discovered that Dana Colby, an old lover of the girl, and an artisan, had a kit of tools from which only an inch gouge was missing. Other evidence has been accumulated, and when arrested, Colby confessed that circumstances were very strong against him. The girl, to whom he has been very attentive again since she recovered consciousness, says, "He did not do it, and if he did, I would not say he was the man."

The Lumber Trade of this week has the following reference to the effects of the proposed Reciprocity Treaty:

So far as the lumber trade of this country is concerned, it is plain that, as to nearly all engaged in it, in any of its departments, the ratification of the treaty would be in the highest degree injurious, and to many of them utterly ruinous. Those dealers in Boston, New York and Chicago, and all other distributing points, who have no interest in American mills or timber lands, might, for the time, be slightly benefited. But this would be only temporary as prices would soon adjust themselves to the changed condition of things, competition and other circumstances very soon bringing down the profits if they were particularly disproportionate to the ordinary profits of business. In our country, more than a fair profit cannot long be secured in any business not a monopoly, which lumber dealing never can be.

THE OLD BARN'S TENANTRY

The rooster stalks on the manger's edge,
He has a tail like a scimiter's edge

A martha's plume on his afghan neck,
An admiral's stride as his quarter deck,

MRS VAUGHAN'S SISTER

(Concluded.)

Lilith frank it off obediently. She was not [illegible] table, only trembling all over from the shock and too much unnerved for speech. But the cool draught helped to restore him [illegible] sure, and then, though her eyes refused [illegible] for one moment from the [illegible] stretched out before them, she [illegible] to thank the doctor, and even ask him if the sufferer was badly wounded.

"Not dangerously," he replied, examining the wounded arm the while with skilful [illegible] touch. "Oh, dear, no!—but nasty, [illegible] You must have been lying in one of those accursed tents in the camp for three days, and so, in addition to a arm, (which he may thank Heaven is spared to him though he never lift it again) has got a touch of fever, which we must look [illegible] Take hold of the bandage, will you, and strap it tightly round here? A brave lad, too, poor fellow—and will be missed in the regiment when—hallo! nurse, your hands are shaking again! Aren't you all right yet?"

"I thought you said the wounds were not dangerous," Edith faltered, her lips whiter than ever.

"No, not the wounds, but fever might be dangerous and anyhow, what could a man with his sword and sash do in the regiment? Now, look here, nurse, I leave him in your charge for to-night. There is nothing to do but keep him cool, change the bandages if required and give him a drink now and then, but I soon Leave you, leave him safe enough, and rather well, too, [illegible] at present still, and keep up your heart child—we can't afford to have you getting sick."

Now this facts, though fevered, unconscious from pain, and badly wounded, Jack was not so bad as the doctor implied, but that good man, thinking his little favorite showed signs of breaking down from overfatigue thought it to give her a quiet, easy post for the night and even carried his [illegible] so far as to bend her to a screen and a reclining chair from his own room that she might watch and rest in some sort of privacy from the constant passing and repassing before the other beds in the ward.

Edith, however, hardly heeded the kind intent of her old friend. She only saw, she only noticed one thing—Jack. Poor Jack! lying there, with his bonny face all white and drawn with a great cut on his head from which the blood oozed slowly, clotting together the golden curls which had mingled with her gay locks in their last "good-bye" kiss, [illegible] than a year ago. Poor Jack! She had no anger against him now—Anger indeed, it was not in her nature to feel and she had to save over and over to herself, that Jack was married, lest she, in a [illegible] fit of temper, should forget to keep away the consciousness of his dearly-loved him still. Dearly! she more dearly than she had ever done before—her brain bright-eyed here wounded and in pain because he had persisted in the path of duty and honor to ease and [illegible] with his young wife. Looking at him, now the almost forgot in her tender pity, that he had ever dishonored himself by his [illegible] to her, and as she bent over him, sun shining the golden hair clipped at the wet rags on his hot head, she found herself putting up a simple little prayer that God would help her to save him for his young wife.

The night wore slowly on, and from moaning, raving, and muttering in his feverish pain Captain Walters had fallen into a quiet sleep, and Edith sat beside him, fanning the flies if his thin face, while every now and then a large tear gathering in each blue eye fell on the clenched brown hand which lay so helplessly on the coarse cover-et.

"If it [illegible] Jack," poor Jack! unnerved the little thing, pitifully, and just then I suppose she had gotten her hand, for one of the tell-tale drops catching her eye as it glittered on the fair wrist, she stooped and kissed it away quickly and gently. Now, I don't know whether there was anything in that kiss, gentle as it was, which aroused some [illegible] in Jack's being, but it most certainly saw [illegible] from the peaceful sleep Edith's [illegible] station had procured him, and [illegible] raised her head, Jack's eyes were open and his voice, very feeble, but the old [illegible] spoke, wonderingly—

"Edith

"Yes, little Edith." She could have sunk in [illegible] and in her embarrassment at being [illegible] but she tried to forget that the [illegible] regarding her with such incredulous [illegible] those of her ex lover—tried to forget that she was anything but the hospital nurse at Scutari, and answered, in soft steady tones—

"Hush! you must not talk or you will make yourself worse. You are very ill"

"I know," Jack repeated, more wonderingly still, and if the pity gave satisfaction, proved [illegible] his strength not being quite gone, by putting out his hand and drawing Edith, despite her reluctance, close to him—"Ill! why I must be mad, or—Edith, is it you? My dear! it can't be fancy."

"No no, its Edith," the girl said, soothingly. "Don't look so troubled, Jack, or I must go away. The doctor said you must be kept quiet."

He did not pay the least attention to her words, but lay holding her fast, and gasping for breath but when she was silent, he said quickly—

"Go on. Speak to me again, or I can't believe it. My brain seems whirling."

Frightened lest the fever might return, Edith knelt down, and raising his head on her arm, begged him, in her soft, cooing tones, not to excite himself. She was there to nurse him and others—only that. It was her profession now, and he must try to get well soon for the sake of—all who loved him" (she was very brave, but she could not say "for his wife's sake")

"Are you a nun, then, Edith?" he asked, more calmly, as her dress and presence grew more realistic to him.

"No, Jack, only a nurse"

"A nurse! and out here! Child, it was not for this you gave me up?"

"Gave you up! Oh, Jack—

So far Edith had got, when she recollected his fearful state, and said no more, but Jack heard the half uttered protest and felt the throbbing of the heart against which his aching head rested. He was jealous and quick-tempered man, but pain is a wonderful subdeer, and Jack had had pains of mind as well as body during the past year. He made up his mind now to know whether there was any cure for the former, or none.

"Edith," he said, "stoop your face lower. Let me look at you. Is it poor?"

"No! you know me, Jack?"

"Aye, even in this place and that dress. There are none like you, little one. Oh, Edith, when you ceased to love me, why were you not frank enough to write and tell me so? Why did you let me go on writing and writing, and never send me a word of answer? Do you know, that if the war had not broken out, I would have raised my accumulation to get you again, and end my misery of suspense? Love, did you never think what I suffered? It was cruel."

"Listen now what you mean, Jack," the girl answered, her innocent eyes wide with a laughter open he could not misinterpret, "if the letter failed, or ceased to have you—how could I?—and I wrote to you long after your letters ceased. Jack, you know I did."

"Edith, is that true?"

She only looked at him; but the mute reproach was touching in its childlike dignity. His hot fingers tried to reach hers, as he begged her pardon, and added—

"But Edith—forgive me for not understanding. I am very weak in my head just now; but I love you so dearly—you will be patient with me, will you not? If you, too, love me still, then you are mine still and why" drawing her closer to him. "do you shrink away and speak so coldly?"

"Oh, Jack!" The poor little girl had borne a great deal; but this persistent opening of her cruel heart-wound was too much, and the tears rushed fast as she answered—

"Dear Jack, please let me go. You ought not. You have forgotten. How can I be yours still? Jack, you are ill now, but think of your wife."

"My wife!" For a moment Jack Walters loosed his hold, starting at her as if he thought her brain was turning—"I have no wife. What wife could I have but you? Who has been lying to you? Child, child, don't cry like that."

For with the consciousness of some terrible black cloud of error suddenly melting away Edith had quite broken down, and was kneeling at his bedside, weeping as if her heart would break.

"Darling," said Jack, feebly—for his strength was ebbing, poor fellow! and he found it hard work now to lift the face his fingers had raised so easily in the old days—"there's been some cruel treachery here, and I can't talk now, only believe this. I love you as I did the first day you were mine, as I have done ever since. You do believe me, Edith?"

She tried to answer "Yes," but the joy in her eyes spoke first.

"Then kiss me once, little one, and I shall know you love me too."

And Edith put her fresh lips to his, and kissed him with a prompt obedience which was promising for married life, after which Jack went to sleep so comfortably, that you see there are soothing as well as awakening kisses, and Edith began to recognise the kindness of the doctor in providing that screen. Had he done otherwise, I fear the preceding scene might have rather astonished the other nurses and patients.

Jack and Edith had not long to wait for an explanation of the cruel error which had nearly blighted their two lives; for on the following day the English mail came in bringing Edith news of Mrs. Vaughan's death, as also a letter written to her by that lady when dying, and in which she confessed with much penitence, that it was she who had woven the plot to part the two young lovers.

"I cared for Jack before ever I married your brother, 'she wrote,' and I thought he cared for me, but he was so poor, and I hated poverty, so I threw him over for Lancelot Vaughan. And afterwards, when Jack came back to find me a widow, and I thought I could atone to him, my heart and be happy, you stepped in. Edith, I could not bear it. I think a devil possessed me, for when I stopped that long letter of yours to him—telling him of what day you would be in England—I had no aim beyond giving him a temporary disappointment. It was only by his angry note came, and I saw how little it needed to make a breach, that I resolved to go on I never thought of winning him again. I only wished to punish him for leaving me, and, in a less degree, you for taking him. But letter you gave me to post, I burnt, and so I did the second, besides intercepting all that came from him. You were so simple Edith, you would trust in me so implicitly, that it was mere child's play to outwit you, and if I had really thought how little I really made a better match, I should have pitied you. But once started, I couldn't leave off, and the idea of the advertisement came to me like an inspiration. I actually saw one announcing the marriage of a Captain Walters in the Times, part of which I had remembered, was also contained at Malta; and it was only copying it for the East Dunnibeisne paper, and altering a letter and figure. I thought you would easily get over your fancy, once suspense was at an end, and I knew your young husband would and shocked me. Edith, I swear to you my life since has been one long remorse, and yet, though I felt you would meet him when you wrote me you were going to Scutari, and though I would not say another word to prevent it, I could not confess what I had done while I lived I am dying now, and I ask you to forgive me—if not at once, later, when you and he are happy together. You will have nothing to wait for now; for all I have is yours."

"Poor, poor Beta!" was all Edith said of reproval, as she folded up the letter, together with a brief note to the family surgeon at St. Garthole's saying that Mrs. Vaughan had just expired, after a short but painful illness, and that Jack would have added something harsher, the pit her little hand over his mouth, and said, "Oh, Jack, don't. Remember she is dead, and we are happy now Let us try to forgive her."

Jack kissed the tyrannous fingers, but not being a people on his little love, he would not give the desired promise, only by and by he grumbled out—

"Nothing to wait for, I suppose we must wait till my arm is healed, and my confounded legs are strong enough to carry me to church"

And so they did, but the legs got strong wonderfully soon, for it was not three weeks from that day before people in St. Garthole's were reading the account of a strictly private wedding in the little hospital at Scutari and looked forward to the return of Mrs Vaughan's sister and her husband to the old house in the High street.

The Spectator (N. Y.) shows that the ratio of the number of policies upon which claims were paid in all companies in the United States was 1 to 1 in 1872, to 11 9 in 1873. In the former year the American Popular lost 4 7, and in the latter 3 7 per cent.

The rate of death claims and expenses to total income, and to total amount at risk, increasing rather than diminishing in the case of the aggregate companies, and in both years very large, compared strongly with the low rate of this Company with the increasing prosperity. In the light of these facts, its low premium rates are more than justified in a practical sense, as, in a scientific view, they are both equitable and secure.

Before the era of inflation in life insurance, the old plan companies are shown by the reports to have done a comparatively small business, and it was doubtless, with the large premiums they required, comparatively safe. Some, commencing later, "pushed business" from the first, with a vehemence that created amusement, and already, in common with all other companies, are beginning to experience the reaction that many have been expected from the abnormal and indiscreet inflation.

The comparatively small (but really large for the kind) number of policies issued by this Company is one of the best evidences of its security—the rigid adherence to well established scientific principles, in the rating of risks, giving low premiums only to superior lives, and thus making the Company attractive to few others. It would surprise those not acquainted with the working of our plan, to know the number of applications received and the amount of labor and care expended in their examination and rating, all of which is just so much to the advantage of superior risks.

It will also be noticed that large business is not a guarantee of safety, for if the mortality is high, indicating a want of care or skill in selection, the larger the business, the more safety is imperilled; and while small business may not show care, large business does show carelessness. We could have shown a very large business from the start if we had been indifferent to the kind. But the kind is the machine, and it would be necessary to doing the amount of our kind of business than would do ten times as much that would be unprofitable to both the assured and to the Company.

The increase of our business during the past year, is as wholesome and encouraging as our losses are small.
